State of the Judiciary

Chief Justice Harold D. Melton delivered his first State of the Judiciary Address to the legislature on February 19, 2019.

In Remembrance of Chief Justice Hines

Just over two months after retiring from the bench, Chief Justice P. Harris Hines died in a car accident on November 4, 2018. “He was a great lawyer, a great judge, and a great public servant, but most of all he was a great man. Because of the love and kindness he extended so freely to others, the late Chief Justice Hines was loved and cherished by every member of our Court, our Court staff, and by just about every person who met him.”

“We are well poised to meet the inevitable changes ahead.”

Chief Justice Melton observed that as the judgeships in Georgia’s appellate courts have recently grown in number, the new jurists have made the courts younger, which will provide stability for years to come as the judiciary works with its legislative and executive branch counterparts “to forge strong relationships to best serve our citizens.”

“In every generation, we have called upon the rule of law to be a beacon of light...”

A sea change has occurred in Georgia’s courts over the years. Courts no longer only seek to punish a crime, but they also seek to treat the underlying problem. Criminal justice reform, in which Justice Michael Boggs has been a leader, has made significant improvements in bail practices and sentencing. Accountability Courts have diverted many people out of the pipeline to prison. Volunteer lawyer groups such as the Atlanta Volunteer Lawyers Foundation have stepped in to improve the education and lives of many disenfranchised young people. All of these efforts contribute to combat the underlying issues of individuals who find themselves in court.

“We do not take this building for granted.”

The appellate courts will move into the new judicial building by winter 2019. The Chief Justice thanked the legislature for approving and funding Georgia’s first state building dedicated solely to the judiciary. “The building looks slightly upward to the Capitol, giving the Legislature the appropriate presumption of righteousness it deserves, but at the same time it looks squarely at the Capitol in readiness to do our jobs.”

The new Judicial Building’s construction progress as of February 2019.

A flier handed out to legislators outlined every class of court in Georgia.

From the Director

On behalf of the Judicial Council and the Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC), I am pleased to share the 46th Annual Report covering our work during Fiscal Year 2019. The AOC was created by statute in 1973 to serve the Judicial Council, which is the statewide governing body for the judicial branch of Georgia. The Judicial Council is made up of 26 judges representing all classes of courts and the president of the State Bar of Georgia, who is a non-voting member.

As we approached the end of Fiscal Year 2019 on June 30th, the AOC experienced an unprecedented ransomware attack on our IT servers. While this unfortunate event burdened many judges and staff by disrupting our services, we used this opportunity to start anew and upgrade and strengthen all of our IT systems. We are now stronger and more secure than ever before.

Before the ransomware incident, we had a very productive year serving the Judicial Council, the broader judiciary, and improving the administration of justice. Our services included four Judicial Council meetings held in Marietta, Atlanta (2), and Columbus; numerous committee meetings (see pages 10-15); creation of a new Courts Directory; and the annual case count. We will report the case count for all courts at georgiacourts.gov when the count is completed. Of particular note this year was the creation of the Judicial Council Ad Hoc Committee to Prevent Sexual Harassment in the Judicial Branch of Government, which is a unique opportunity for our staff to support the development of a statewide sexual harassment prevention policy for the judiciary.

Our staff successfully shepherded legislation and budget requests through the 2019 legislative session. One such budget enhancement expanded our administrative role overseeing grants for legal services for victims of domestic violence to include the administration of grants for legal services to divert at-risk children into kinship care. The Presiding Justice often joined our weekly legislative calls, which kept everyone informed and provided a platform to voice ideas or concerns. With the Judicial Council's recommendation, the Griffin and Gwinnett Circuits were successful in persuading the legislature to grant them new judgeships.

The AOC staff also worked with partners in both the judicial and executive branches, and within the broader community, to provide a variety of services and products, including co-hosting the 2018 Child Welfare Summit, the Eliminating Barriers to Justice Conference, the Georgia Council of Court Administrators Conference, the Georgia State Bar, Media & Judiciary Conference, and the 2018 National Association of Court Management Conference. We assisted and livestreamed the Judicial Work at the Interface of Mental Health & Criminal Justice seminar, which was well attended. We continued to collect and analyze important participant data for the Council of Accountability Court Judges, the Child Support Commission, and Parental Accountability Courts. And finally, we hosted a Criminal Record Expungement Clinic in Albany, Georgia, with the faith community, the Dougherty Judicial Circuit Superior Court judges, and Law Library staff.

The JC/AOC facilitates many training events across the State. Below: Attendees gather for the 2018 Child Welfare Conference.

This year we enhanced the professional and ethical image of the judiciary through a number of creative events and resources. The AOC began a video series to introduce the public to the members of the Judicial Council, created a series of video stories featuring accountability court graduations around the state, created pictorial essays of a day in the life of a Magistrate Court judge, and highlighted judges who celebrated Constitution Day (September 17th), Bill of Rights Day (December 15th), and Law Day (May 1st) in their communities. These written and visual stories were profiled in publications and on social media over the past year, and we thank the judges for patiently allowing us to film their activities. It is vitally important to show and tell the good work being done by Georgia's judges to deliver and improve justice in our state.

The AOC continues to have an international impact as our relationship with the United States Department of State and the Republic of Georgia's judiciary continued this year. Last fall, we welcomed a Mandela Washington Fellow from Ethiopia, which is a program sponsored by the Department of State.

As I write this message, we continue to watch the finishing touches on the new Judicial Building, and we cannot help but reflect on our loss this year of our beloved Justice Harris Hines, the former Chair of the Judicial Council and my boss. Like the new building, Justice Hines was a majestic leader who inspired others by his kind words and good works. He often remarked how hard work and sincerity could transform a life. Justice Hines continues to be missed, and I believe his spirit lives on in our service.

At the AOC's final staff meeting of the calendar year, we were fortunate to be serenaded by the Council of Municipal Court Judges' President Matthew McCord, who has an amazing voice. All our staff found it deeply moving. The daily work of this agency and my opportunity to lead it always fills me with purpose, but moments like that bring so much joy to ♪"let it shine, let it shine"♪. It is an honor to serve as the AOC Director. We can and we will improve our services even more in the years to come.

Above: The staff at the Administrative Office of the Courts provides support to every class of court in Georgia.

Judge Matthew McCord delivering his message at the December staff meeting, "... be the hardest on your own opinions, it will keep you humble."

With appreciation and respect,

Mission

To improve the quality, accessibility, and administration of Accountability Courts. The CACJ strives to set goals that include achievable expectations; make efficient use of resources that adhere to evidence-based research and leading practices, work to enhance public safety, and that are transparent to all.

Highlights

- Implemented seven new accountability courts in FY19, bringing the total number of certified/funded courts up to 163.
- Piloted a new blended learning and strategic action planning protocol to complement the existing peer review process.

Above, top: the Executive Committee on stage with Governor Deal at the 2018 Training Conference. Bottom: recipients of the 2018 Star Award.

- Hosted our second Mental Health Court Start-up Training. This training is designed for the implementation of Mental Health Court programs to provide the new team members foundational training to operate new programs.
- The Carl Vinson Institute released the CACJ Processes and Outcomes report. The report outlines the positive impacts of accountability courts to participants and their communities. Studies in the report showed:
 - » Those that graduate do far better than those that are terminated;
 - » Recidivism rates of offenders that have just some participation in an accountability court program are lower compared to similarly-situated offenders who did not participate in a program; and
 - » Taken together these studies show that any amount of participation in an accountability court, regardless of completions, leads to reduced recidivism, which is consistent with national findings.
- Hosted 22 accountability court teams for an annual operational tune-up training. These trainings revisit team roles, selecting the right participants, evidenced-based treatment, and legal issues.
- The council examined the previous year's (FY 2018) data. Some of the positive impacts found were:
 - » 99 families reunited due to accountability courts;
 - » 93 drug free babies born to female participants, who otherwise would have likely been born with Neonatal Abstinence Syndrome, thereby saving approximately $5,877,600;
 - » In FY 2019, accountability courts served 29 percent more participants than in FY 2018, expanding the potential benefits of these courts to Georgia and its citizens.

An excerpt from the Processes and Outcomes report shows the many benefits of Accountability Courts.

Accountability courts help lower recidivism and help people return to productive lives, supporting their families and paying taxes.

Accountability courts cost approximately $5,000 less per participant compared to incarceration.

"For 25 years, I came to this courthouse because I was in trouble or in jail. In the past two years, it has been because you all wanted to help me. I have been on probation or locked up for 30 years. I can't tell you how grateful I am for you all."

The CACJ Annual Conference brings together judges, court professionals, treatment providers, law enforcement, and other stakeholders for extensive training. The September 2018 conference was the largest yet with approximately 1,200 attendees.

Mission

The Georgia Commission on Dispute Resolution (GCDR) is a policy-making body appointed by the Supreme Court of Georgia charged with leading a statewide system of court alternative dispute resolution (ADR) programs.

Highlights

- There are currently 41 court ADR programs in Georgia offering high-quality, cost-effective alternatives to traditional litigation. These services cover 93 of the 159 counties and utilize neutrals registered through the Georgia Office of Dispute Resolution in a range of categories that include general civil mediation, domestic relations mediation, specialized domestic violence, arbitration, early neutral evaluation, juvenile dependency and juvenile delinquency. As of June 30, 2019, there were 2,521 registered neutrals. The partnership between neutrals, programs, and the Commission creates a comprehensive network that benefits taxpayers, litigants, attorneys, judges, and courts.
- 25th Annual ADR Institute and 2018 Neutrals' Conference: The Institute was held Friday, December 7, 2018, at the State Bar of Georgia. There were 272 attendees in total. The keynote speaker was Professor Andrea Kupfer Schneider, Director of the Dispute Resolution Program at Marquette University Law School, with her presentation "What's Sex Got to do with it? Effective Negotiation Skills for All". Here, GCDR and the Dispute Resolution Section of the State Bar of Georgia also presented the 2018 Chief Justice Harold G. Clarke Award to Raye Rawls, Esq. in recognition of her outstanding contributions to the field of alternative dispute resolution in Georgia.

- New Rules for Mediating Cases with Domestic Violence: In a joint effort by GCDR and the Georgia Commission on Family Violence to update the mediation rules concerning screening practices for cases in which intimate partner violence/abuse (domestic violence) is present, the GCDR approved new Rules for Mediating Cases with Domestic Violence, effective January 1, 2021.
- Changes in GCDR Leadership: The Georgia Commission on Dispute Resolution has a new chair, after long-serving Athens-Clarke County State Court Judge Charles E. Auslander stepped down. Judge Auslander was appointed to the Commission in 2006 and led as chair since 2012. Judge Auslander—a UGA “Double Dawg” - passed the gavel to Chair-Elect Superior Court of Fulton County Judge Jane C. Barwick, in a ceremony during a February 13 Commission meeting at the University of Georgia’s Law School on his home turf: Athens. The Commission also recognized outgoing members Ms. Stefani R. Lacour, Esq. and Ms. Vjolca Prroni Young, LL.M., and Justice Keith R. Blackwell ushered in the Commission’s new members, as appointed by the Supreme Court: Fulton County Juvenile Court Presiding Judge Renata Turner, Ms. Nicole W. Hull, Esq., and Mr. Randall Weiland. The Supreme Court has also approved the addition of a new seat on the Commission to ensure the permanent designation of a ADR court program director.

- 25th Anniversary: The Supreme Court Order adopting the ADR Rules, including the creation of GCDR and GODR, was filed on January 27, 1993. This order established a new precedent for handling conflict in Georgia, "providing for the speedy, efficient, and inexpensive resolution of disputes and prosecutions." To commemorate the special occasion, GCDR:
 - » Commissioned a Special Anniversary seal;
 - » Published and distributed “The First 25 Years” a History of the Commission;
 - » Hosted seven (7) continuing education events around the state; and
 - » Offered five (5) scholarships for 2018 registration renewal fees.

- 2018 ADR Program Directors Conference: The conference was held September 19-21, in Athens. In all, 25 representatives from court ADR programs and nine Commission Members were in attendance.

"The First 25 Years" is a thorough compendium of the Commission's history.

Mission:

Striving to improve justice for children and families within the child welfare legal system.

Highlights:

- Continued to expand our two-day Multi-Disciplinary Child Abuse and Neglect Institute (MD-CANI) training to reach over 1300 stakeholders, from 50 different Georgia counties. This is a two-day training that covers best practices during the entirety of a dependency case from intake through permanency.
- Co-sponsoring the third annual Child Welfare Legal Summit in November 2019, in partnership with the Office of the Child Advocate and the Division of Family and Children Services, with an anticipated 800 attendees. Honorable Scott Bernstein of the 11th Circuit Court of Appeals will be the keynote speaker.
- Secured $375,000 in funding from the legislature to support legal services for kinship caregivers, provided by legal service providers across the state. These services will likely prevent more children from entering foster care.
- Continued managing a three-year Quality Improvement federal grant in Douglas County, which serves pregnant women, or new mothers, who are substance exposed.

By providing holistic services to these women, the children born to these mothers avoid being taken into care.

- Continued to support the Cold Case Project which reviews over 300 long-term foster care cases each year, to help these children overcome barriers and achieve permanency.
- Continue to support the 57 Georgia Child Welfare Law Specialists with bi-annual trainings and scholarships.
- Provided stakeholder educational opportunities at two Court Improvement Initiative meetings for approximately 100 stakeholders attending from 17 jurisdictions.
- Continued work to enhance the Court Process Reporting System (CPRS) to meet the growing needs of its user base, including its largest users, CASAs and judges.
- Promoted awareness of the importance of child welfare work by awarding the annual Hines Award to one child welfare attorney and one child welfare case manager. The awards were presented by Presiding Justice Nahmias at the Georgia State Bar meeting in Orlando.

The Committee and staff facilitate many trainings across Georgia on matters of child welfare. Below, L to R: Judge Michael Key presents at a Multi-disciplinary Child Abuse and Neglect Institute, Presiding Justice Nahmias keynotes the 2018 Child Welfare Conference, Jerry Bruce hosts a discussion about juvenile alternative dispute resolution issues.

Mission

The Child Support Commission was created by statute for the purpose of studying and collecting information and data relating to awards of child support and to create and revise the child support obligation table. The Commission conducts comprehensive reviews of the child support guidelines, economic conditions, and all matters relevant to maintaining effective and efficient child support guidelines that will serve the best interest of Georgia's children and considers the changing dynamics of family life.

The Commission trains judges, attorneys, mediators, and the public around the state; develops and maintains the state's child support calculator and worksheets; maintains websites for the Child Support Commission and for Georgia's Income Deduction Order process; and proposes legislation when it deems an amendment to the guidelines is necessary.

Highlights

The Child Support Commission sponsored legislation in 2019 adding an exclusion to gross income for adoption assistance; removing language that allowed the use of minimum wage and 40 hour work weeks as a standard for imputing income, pursuant to a federal requirement; added “or the jury” in appropriate locations; and cleaned up grammar and punctuation throughout the statute, O.C.G.A. § 19-6-15. The Child Support Commission established two study committees in 2019 to study the Low Income Deviation and the Parenting Time Deviation.

Staff continued training around the state at 24 locations on the child support guidelines, child support online calculator, and Georgia’s Income Deduction Order process. We also support the Department of Human Services, Division of Child Support Services’ Parental Accountability Courts by providing a database and training for court coordinators to gather information on participants for evaluation purposes. This year, information from the database will be used to create a second research report on the effectiveness and continued growth of those courts.

When scheduling training seminars, the commission staff emphasizes going to every part of the State. The pictures above are from training events in (top to bottom) Augusta-Richmond, Tift, and Hall Counties.

In 2019, the Supreme Court of Georgia took a historic step – across the street and into a new building. At the end of the year, the state’s highest court and the Court of Appeals moved into the new Nathan Deal Judicial Center – the first State building in Georgia history dedicated solely to the judiciary, the third branch of government. As Chief Justice Harold D. Melton said in his first State of the Judiciary address to the Georgia Legislature: “This building reflects what the citizens of this great State expect the Justices and Judges to accomplish each day when we come to work. It reflects the dignity and majesty of the rule of law we are called upon to uphold on a daily basis.”

With the historic move, the Supreme Court kept costs down by taking with it all existing furniture and furnishings that remained sturdy and appropriate. It also purchased some key furnishings that were designed and constructed by Georgia prison inmates through Georgia Correctional Industries and the Georgia Department of Corrections. The purchase of the furniture allowed the Supreme Court to support the rehabilitation of offenders while obtaining stately furniture at a cost effective price.

The regeneration and vitality of the new judicial building reflect the makeup of the Supreme Court itself. By the end of 2020, six of our nine Justices will have taken office only within the last few years. The majority of today’s Justices served previously on the Court of Appeals, Georgia’s intermediate appellate court.

The Justices reflect a diversity of backgrounds:

CHIEF JUSTICE MELTON was Executive Counsel to former Governor Sonny Perdue (later U.S. Secretary of Agriculture); PRESIDING JUSTICE DAVID E. NAHMIAs was United States Attorney in Atlanta; JUSTICE ROBERT BENHAM was the first African-American appointed to the state’s highest court in more than 140 years; JUSTICE KEITH BLACKWELL graduated Number 1 in his class at the University of Georgia law school and was top of his class at UGA’s undergraduate school; JUSTICE MICHAEL P. BOGGS and JUSTICE CHARLES J. BETHEL both served in the Georgia Legislature; JUSTICE NELS S.D. PETERSON was Georgia’s first Solicitor General; JUSTICE SARAH H. WARREN also served as Solicitor General and argued before the United States Supreme Court; and JUSTICE JOHN J. ELLINGTON has served on every level of court in the state of Georgia.

All the new Justices quickly settled into their jobs and took on a caseload that grew 8 percent between January-to-September in 2018 and January-to-September in 2019. During that time, filings in direct appeals grew 11 percent; filings in habeas petitions grew 16 percent. Murders, which are by far the largest category of cases that come to the Court, grew 34 percent.

"FIAT JUSTITIA. RUAT CAELUM"

The 2019 Supreme Court of Georgia

People are often surprised to learn that in addition to their judicial duties, the Justices have a wide range of responsibilities concerning the regulation and oversight of the state's legal and judicial professions. Chief Justice Melton chairs Georgia's Judicial Council, which is the policy-making body for Georgia's judiciary and is comprised of representatives from every class of court. He appointed in 2019 a Committee to Prevent Sexual Harassment in the Judicial Branch of Government, which continues to make progress in developing policies to prevent sex harassment both for the Supreme Court and the judiciary statewide. Justice Sarah H. Warren chairs the Committee. Every Justice has oversight or liaison responsibilities with various organizations, many of which are listed in the table at the bottom of this page.

In addition, the Supreme Court reviews and approves all rules published by Georgia courts and judicial regulatory entities. In 2019, the Court amended its own rules governing oral arguments. Effective Sept. 9, 2019, the new rules allow law students to participate in arguing cases before the high court. Another amendment requires that requests for oral argument in a case must include details about why argument is necessary before the Court grants the request. The Court made the changes to improve the quality of oral arguments and bring the state's highest court in line with other appellate courts nationwide.

Vision:

Judicial Excellence; Accessible, Effective, and Efficient Superior Courts.

Mission:

The Council of Superior Court Judges' mission is to provide leadership and support to preserve the ability of the Courts to meet their constitutional and statutory responsibilities and further the administration of justice while functioning as a liaison with other courts and the other two branches of Government.

The Council provides payroll and travel reimbursements; budget administration and accounting; leave entry, benefit coordination, and other human resources needs for all judges and their state-paid staff; and management of all superior court statewide accounting functions.

The Council also provides legal support for required publications such as the Uniform Rules for Superior Courts and Pattern Jury Instructions; statewide legal support for judges handling death penalty habeas corpus cases; logistics for seminars and meetings; and numerous other critical statewide functions for superior courts.

The Council office also serves as the hub for legislative tracking, meeting coordination, and monitoring during the legislative session.

President

Judge Shawn LaGrua, Atlanta Judicial Circuit

President Elect

Judge Brian Amero, Flint Judicial Circuit

Secretary Treasurer

Judge J. Wade Padgett,

Immediate Past President

Judge Stephen Kelley,
Brunswick Judicial Circuit

Goals:

Over the next four years, the Council will seek sufficient funding to provide state paid law clerks for the 34 Superior Court judges who do not already have a state or county paid law clerk.

Judge Doris L. Downs and Judge H. Gibbs Flanders were the recipients of the 2019 Emory Findley Award. The award recognizes judges for their outstanding leadership and dedication to the continued improvement of our court system.

Highlights:

Staffing: During the recession, many law clerk positions were eliminated. With the assistance of the Governor and the Legislature, the Council has restored some of these positions and created others. Of the 214 active Superior Court Judges, only 34 lack either a state or county paid law clerk.

Judicial Education Podcasts: Superior Court Judges Wade Padgett and LaTain Kell have worked diligently to create a podcast series, “The Good Judge-ment Podcast,” to not only provide accessible continuing education opportunities to judges, but also to extend the information to lawyers and members of the public. These Podcasts are available free of charge in iTunes.

Pattern Jury Instructions Rewrite

Initiative: Under the leadership of CSCJ President Judge Shawn LaGrúa, the Council plans to rewrite many of the suggested pattern jury instructions in plain English. This project will be conducted by a subcommittee within the Council which will work throughout the year.

This initiative is intended to better assist judges in the instruction of jurors by promoting a clear and concise presentation of the law to citizens serving on a jury.

Mental Health in Local Jails: Under the leadership of CSCJ President-Elect Judge Brian Amero, the Council created a Special Committee on Mental Health in Local Jails. The Committee hosted a training conference on Judicial Work at the Interface of Mental Health and Criminal Justice in May at Georgia State Law School.

Post-trial Rules: In conjunction with the Supreme Court of Georgia, and in consultation with the State Bar of Georgia, the Council of Superior Court Clerks, the Georgia Public Defender Council, the Georgia Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, and the Prosecuting Attorneys’ Council, CSCJ amended the Uniform Superior Court Rules on motions for new trials to expedite such proceedings and instituted reporting measures to better identify criminal cases with post-trial delays.
